MONKEYPOX
SAFER SEX CHOICES

Sex is an important part of the lives of many of us. We know that during this outbreak people are going to continue having sex, so we’ve some suggestions on how to make sex safer, if you choose to have it. It’s important to know that we are still learning about how monkeypox is transmitted, stay connected to our website and socials for updates.

CONSIDER REDUCING SEXUAL PARTNERS
Reducing your number of sexual partners until the vaccine becomes more readily available will reduce the risk of getting monkeypox. Group sex and sex parties could be swapped for fun with a regular partner or in a sex bubble.

CREATE A SEX BUBBLE
Similar to how people established bubbles to make socialising safer from COVID-19 – we can do the same for sex. Choose a small group of partners that agree to limit sex to members of the bubble. Stay alert to any symptoms and let members of the bubble know if you have a potential exposure.

WEAR MORE CLOTHING OR GEAR
Monkeypox is mostly spread through skin-to-skin contact. Having sex with your clothes on or by wearing leather or latex gear during sex can provide protection – just remember to change or clean clothes and gear between partners.

GO VIRTUAL, DISTANCED, OR SOLO
Masturbation when connected with others online or in-person without touching will prevent monkeypox. It might also be a good time to explore your own body with sex toys.

PRACTICE OPEN AND HONEST COMMUNICATION
Before meeting up with a partner, talk about monkeypox. Have you or have they had any recent sexual partners? Talk about whether you have any sores or other monkeypox symptoms. Get a contact number and agree to let the other person know if you develop symptoms.

CONSIDER CONDOMS
Condom use won’t fully protect against monkeypox, but it could help reduce the risk of skin-to-skin contact with any lesions on or in the bum and genitals. It may also prevent transmission via bodily fluids, like cum.

TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF AND OTHERS
Be kind to one another as we learn how to navigate this challenging time. Get vaccinated when you can. If you have flu-like symptoms or a new rash, stay at home and contact your sexual health service or GP to organise a test.

GAZE ONLINE

This year GAZE Online runs from Sunday 2nd October – Saturday 8th October with IFI@Home, offering a fantastic at-home selection of some of our favourite LGBTQ+ films this year, plus some exclusive online screenings. Flip go to page 58 for more.

The Living End
CHAIRPERSON’S WELCOME

Welcome to the 30th edition of GAZE International LGBTQ+ Film Festival! Since its foundation 30 years ago.

GAZE has been creating spaces for our community to come together to celebrate queer cinema, share common cultural experiences, and to see our stories represented on the big screen. GAZE has been a platform for emerging and established LGBTQ+ filmmakers to showcase their work, as well as an advocate for deeper understanding of the breadth and complexity of our communities.

It is very easy for those who look at us from the outside to take a simplistic view of what it means to be LGBTQ+, but the reality is that we are a diverse community of communities. At GAZE, we aim to be representative in our programming to ensure that all voices within our communities are heard. This is no easy task and I want to commend our programming team, led by Festival Director Greg Thorpe, who have curated an exciting programme of features, short films, and documentaries that demonstrate and celebrate our diversity. We are really excited this year that our festival extends beyond the usual five days with a gallery programme in partnership with The Complex that runs on after the cinema programme, as well as an online programme of screenings that helps us to engage with audiences around the island.

We are also excited that we have been able to begin to support LGBTQ+ film artists by creating opportunities for filmmakers to come together and share their work, along with offering some bursaries to support their career development. We look forward to these initiatives bearing fruit in future editions of the festival!

I want to express my grateful thanks to Greg, Alice and James, for curating such a magnificent programme for us to enjoy. I want to also thank Caoimhe for her work as Festival Manager. The Light House and IFI are always a joy to work with and we are delighted that they can host us again this year, along with The Complex. I must also acknowledge the dedication of our Festival Board who give so generously of their time and expertise all year round.

GAZE would not be possible without the generous financial support of our funders. We are very grateful to the Arts Council for supporting our ambitions to grow the festival as we work towards a new strategic plan. Thanks also to the Broadcasting Authority of Ireland for their continued support this year. We are also deeply grateful to Accenture, our main sponsor, for their loyal support. We are proud to partner with Accenture and to share a common goal of advancing inclusion through diversity. To all our sponsors, funders, advertisers, and especially to our Festival Friends: thank you!

I hope that you will find something that speaks to you in this year’s programme. I look forward to seeing many of you during the festival and to raising a glass to celebrate GAZE in this milestone 30th year!

Eimhin Walsh
Chairperson
When I joined GAZE in April, September seemed a mighty long way off, yet here we are already! Stepping into such a brilliant team ensured that an intense challenge has also been a genuine pleasure, and so my first task is to thank the full GAZE team. Thanks also to my new working partners outside the festival who showed patience and kindness as I learned on the job – I couldn’t have got here without you.

We all know it can be a bit tricky when gays turn 30, but we’re feeling fit as a fiddle and ready to welcome back audiences with smart, innovative queer cinema for all. At the festival’s heart is our packed five-day cinema programme with long-term partners IFI and Light House Cinema.

For this milestone anniversary year I also had permission and encouragement to programme a little outside the box. Given the sheer quantity of fantastic films on offer, this was an opportunity I grabbed with both hands. So this year you will also find a GAZE Culture Night special, a programme of new queer films screening for free at The Complex Gallery, curated with myself and Caoimhe Lavelle, plus a selection of GAZE Online films you can curate and enjoy yourself from anywhere in Ireland. We hope these new evolving platforms bring LGBTQ+ film to more audiences than ever before. Tell us what you think!

As GAZE looks back at its history, two themes for the festival naturally presented themselves. Firstly, to honour the legacies of our LGBTQ+ forebears in art, sex, activism and life. That’s why you’ll find queer classics curated by very special guests: Tonie Walsh brings Gregg Araki’s explosive The Living End, while Ruth McCarthy offers Cheryl Dunye’s super-hot and hilarious Mommy Is Coming. Plus our Friday night late is none other than John Waters’ iconic Pink Flamingos – and if you think we’re looking good at 30, Flamingos is 50 and as horribly good as it ever was! Other queer pioneers and their tales of joy and endurance pop up across the programme. Watch and give love to the ancestors.

Our other theme comes from the very roots of the festival: the art of film itself. Our shorts programmes queer a selection of themes which celebrate this aspect of GAZE, namely The Art of Cruising, The Art of Dress, The Art of Experience, and The Art of Imagination. Each programme brings a diversity of film around a shared concept with outrageous, sexy, imaginative and touching results. Thanks to our brilliant Junior Programmers James Hudson and Alice Linehan for their co-curation, and thanks also to aemi who have yet again devised for you a beautiful set of shorts under their banner of Making & Unmaking. You will love it.

Everything else I want to recommend to you is in the carefully written prose that follows, and also watch out for my own Director’s Spotlights recommendations where I flag films that have especially moved and inspired me during this year’s programming experience. But needless to say, if it’s in the festival, it’s something we have fallen in love with, and we hope you will too.

If you see me any time between festival launch and festival finish, come and say hello, I’d love to meet you. Enjoy GAZE 2022, and happy 30th to us all!

Greg Thorpe
Festival Director
In our 30th anniversary year, GAZE is delighted to present the Vanguard Award to Yvonne O’Reilly and Kevin Sexton in honour of their work in founding the festival we now know and love as GAZE. We literally wouldn’t be here without them!

Originally Dublin Lesbian and Gay Film Festival, it grew out of a film club which was set up by Yvonne O’Reilly at the IFI in 1992. Soon afterwards, Yvonne was joined by Kevin Sexton, and together they founded the festival and led it in its early years, creating a significant LGBTQ+ cultural event for Dublin, securing sponsors and funders including the Arts Council to come on board, and providing opportunities for audiences and filmmakers alike. Yvonne later returned to the festival and led its re-branding as GAZE in 2007.

The Vanguard Award will be presented to Yvonne and Kevin on the opening night of GAZE 2022 at the Light House Cinema.

Four years ago, GAZE created the Vanguard Award to honour an individual who has made a significant contribution to the LGBTQ+ community in Ireland. The first recipients included Mary McAleese, Ailbhe Smyth and David Norris. From 2021 onwards, the Vanguard Award will celebrate an important contribution to cinema as well as LGBTQ+ life, and we were delighted to present the award for 2021 to writer and actor Mark O’Halloran.

The annual GAZE Film Awards are our way of thanking the Irish and international film-making community for their work, and shining a spotlight on exceptional films showing at the festival. It’s hoped that receiving a GAZE Film Award will boost the profile and confidence of filmmakers and many of our past winners have gone on to do even more quality work.

This year our fantastic jury will select awards across three categories:

- BEST IRISH SHORT FILM
- BEST INTERNATIONAL SHORT FILM
- BEST DOCUMENTARY FILM

The winners will be announced at our closing cinema event on Sunday 2nd October at the Light House, so grab your tickets for the evening quickly, and join us there to celebrate the finest LGBTQ+ storytellers.

HELD AT THE OUTHOUSE THEATER

GAZE is committed to platforming work by Irish film-making talent, especially films that raise up our community’s more marginalised voices. This year, in our first official screening event for Dublin, a chorus of voices will make themselves heard across two vital new film projects.

We are excited to premiere these films at the fantastic Outhouse Theatre on Capel Street for Culture Night 2022. Outhouse is one of our spiritual homes and a crucial hub for Dublin’s queer communities, so we couldn’t think of a better place to share this exciting work. The screenings are free to attend.

Wildhood

Narrative, Canada, 2021,
Dir. Bretten Hannam, 1h 40m

“At least now you’re free to go anywhere you want…”

Two-Spirit director Bretten Hannam’s Wildhood radically re-imagines both the romance and the road movie in a captivating and beautifully-observed feature that was six-times nominated at the Canadian Screen Awards 2022 while winning three Best Feature awards from other festivals. When Lincoln (Phillip Lewitski) discovers a devastating family truth he leaves behind his impoverished home with younger brother Travis to find his true history for himself.

The brothers are joined on the road by Two-Spirit Pas-may (Joshua Odjick) whose gentle but profound influence allows Lincoln to connect with desire, freedom, and his own Mi’kmaq heritage. No performance in this film will leave you unmoved, in particular from Odjick, who has been twice-decorated for their role as Pas-may. Every so often a film comes along that expands the horizons of our queer understanding and kinship. GAZE is thrilled to open our thirtieth anniversary festival with just such a movie.

Documentary Hybrid, Ireland, 2022, Dir. Anna Rodgers, Shaun Dunne, Producer Zlata Filipović, 1h 41m

“I want to tell you something. I want to tell you something…”

This ground-breaking film takes on the enormity and complexity of HIV in Ireland with rigorous honesty, ingenuity and artistry that propels the conversation forward. People in Ireland living with HIV share experiences with disarming emotional generosity and multiple creative means – making room for rage, acceptance, catastrophe and love along the way. Mixing new documentary work and archival footage with verbatim theatre, lip sync and a non-linear film style, this is queer story-telling at its best. Veda’s embodiment of the Dice-man, Thom McGinty, is surely one of the most iconic visions of queer Ireland yet captured on film. This is the HIV film Ireland has been waiting for.

Narrative, Germany, 2022,
Dir. Marielle Sjømo Samstad, 1h 46

"Your dear Clara would love to be done with the robberies..."

For almost thirty years the Red Army Faction, aka Baader Meinhof Gang, terrorised the capitalist powers-that-be of Germany. Dagmar (Linda Sixt) is one of the final gang members to remain on the run, unable to conform or to imagine an existence beyond bank robberies, false names and hideouts. Her teenage daughter Clara (Alida Stricker) is inescapably caught up in their renegade existence, longing for a life of normality, and yearning to be with her second mother Samira who has made a break from the criminal underworld – for now at least. As Clara navigates her own burgeoning queer desire and begins to taste genuine freedom for the first time, conflicts ensue that are way beyond typical adolescent friction.

With taut dialogue, nail-biting heist scenes and a gorgeous queer nightclub sequence, Generation Tochter sets a sophisticated standard for lesbian thrillers to come.

Thursday 29th September
20:50, IFI

Documentary, USA, 2021
Dir. Brian Vincent, 1h 32m

“There was this kind of mania to be noticed..."

Our collective cultural obsession with all things down-town and dirty from pre-gentrification New York City is supremely catered for by the insanely high drama of Make Me Famous. Manhattan is still in thrall to ultimate Art God, Andy Warhol, and in an era where you can’t swing a paint can without hitting a new artist, the unknown painter Edward Brezinski wants to make it big. While rising stars like Jean-Michel Basquiat and Keith Haring emerge from the party-n-paint lifestyle of the East Village and Lower East Side, Brezinski’s tale is a campy yet earnest expose of what it took to survive the rough and tumble of America’s last great art explosion. The film includes never before seen archive video of the 1980s art scene, including clips of the era’s most influential art films, while the archival footage of Manhattan at its grimy and glamorous best has to be seen to be believed.

JIMMY IN SAIGON

IRISH FILM INSTITUTE

Gay film director Peter McDowell was only 5 years old when his enigmatic older brother Jimmy died in Saigon having returned to Vietnam as a civilian after his US military service. Why did he go back? What happened to Jimmy in Vietnam? And how did he die? An uneasy veil of family silence around Jimmy's story prompts Peter to embark on a journey of questioning with a trusty camera in tow. Through hundreds of Jimmy's letters, long-kept secrets and an unexpectedly close-to-home revelation, the truth about Jimmy's life and death delivers a startling real-time documentary triumph. A decade in the making, spanning continents, with a lifetime of questioning to make up for, Jimmy In Saigon is a heart-wrenching but ultimately life-affirming reconciliation with the truth. If you believe life is stranger than fiction, and you like a good weep, you should let Jimmy In Saigon into your heart.

QUEER CLASSIC

LIGHT HOUSE CINEMA

For lovers of... We Were Here, Coming Out Under Fire

THE LIVING END

Narrative, USA, 1992,
Dir. Gregg Araki, 1h 24m

“Fuck everything!”

Before anti-retrovirals, before Morrissey went bat-shit, before 'Bad Gays' were bad and GAZE was even 'GAZE'... there was Gregg Araki's The Living End. Released the same year GAZE was born, this is a perfect chance for us to delve back into a genuine queer classic – and just like us, it's looking damn good for 30. Araki totally corrupts the iconic American road movie template with his nihilistic HIV positive pansy and punk duo, ripping up the present like there's no tomorrow - because there really wasn't. With an irresistible lexicon of guns, muscles and Smiths posters, and a soundtrack to kill for, The Living End spoke to an angry young queer generation who were about to get their own new wave of cinema and an attitude that was well and truly earned. Absolutely fuck everything.

In conversation:
This special archive curation has been selected by DJ, writer, historian, activist, and all-round Dublin gay icon, Tonie Walsh. Tonie will join GAZE after the screening to talk about The Living End, queer cinema, and 30 years of GAZE.

Narrative, Argentina / Brazil, 2021,
Dir. Leonardo Brzezicki, 1h 52m
“You need to go deep…”
An incredibly persuasive orgy scene sets the tone for Brzezicki’s deep-dive into a sexy gay existentialist crisis. Santiago (Leonardo Sbaraglia) is handsome, horny, hung, and hungover. He’s also a father, a lost soul, and just about old enough to know better. As he beds a succession of gorgeous men not much older than his daughter Laila, the real love of his life, Laila herself, is gradually slipping through his fingers. The intense family drama at the heart of this feisty narrative stops it from becoming another gay pills and party escapade, and the tension/adoration between father and daughter is magnificently portrayed. That’s not to say the hedonism isn’t irresistible. If the stark naked George Michael karaoke, or the best cinematic group sex since Shortbus doesn’t satisfy you, maybe your own minor crisis is just around the corner...

Friday 30th September
22:30, Light House
Narrative, USA, 1972,
Dir. John Waters, 1h 33m
“This is a direct attack on my divinity!”
From screen bans to a place in the Library of Congress, the half-century journey of the abominably good Pink Flamingos is the history of underground cinema itself – loathed and revered in equal measures (it was even profiled in Vogue this year). It’s hard to believe this delve into the glorious grotesque was already twenty years old when GAZE got started. It is iconic beyond anyone’s wildest dreams, and its stars, “The Filthiest People Alive”, and their antics, could only have come from the filth-genius mind of director John Waters. His fabulously shambolic underground stars make Warhol’s seem like actual Hollywood royalty by contrast, and they’re out in full force here – including Mink Stole and Edith Massey. But it’s clearly Divine who rules this filthy universe and the outrageousness of her antics will shock you like the very first time. “There’s just two kinds of people, Miss Sandstone, my kind of people, and assholes!” In an age of increasing conservatism and gate-keeping, the faint-of-heart are exactly who should be watching this movie. Bring your own barf bags.

A teenage boy discovers he can use his face massager for... not just his face.
“I called to say I love you. To thank you for your love…”

The early days of AIDS brought such losses that a true cultural reckoning of those times has been hard to come by – not least because so many of the best storytellers were among the fallen. Russell T. Davies’ It’s A Sin brought the pandemic back into public consciousness, and Rodrigo de Oliveira’s The First Fallen goes deeper with unflinching directorial imagination, resulting in a narrative full of rage and beauty as three friends prepare to face a new and awful inevitability. Among the many special things about the film is a rare centering of trans experience in an AIDS narrative, for which Renata Carvalho’s portrayal of Rose establishes an unforgettable voice. Johnny Massaro’s Suzano is tender-hearted and courageous and reminds us of so many lost and eternally young. It would mean nothing to celebrate 30 years of LGBTQ+ cinema without time and space for a reflection on HIV and AIDS. On Thursday we also screen Irish hybrid-documentary work How To Tell A Secret to bring the conversation on HIV right up to date.

IN HER WORDS: 20TH CENTURY LESBIAN FICTION

IRISH FILM INSTITUTE
15:30

Documentary, USA, 2022
Dir. Lisa Marie Evans, Marianne K. Martin, 1h 40m

“We believe lesbians are superior at once and your manuscript should reflect this…”

Prepare to repeatedly gasp in awe as all your favourite literary lesbians grace the screen in new interviews and magical archival footage in a superlative documentary that traces the journey of Sapphic writing from the last century. Evans and Martin leave few stones unturned as their story winds from The Well Of Loneliness to queer kids’ books, via porn, crime, horror, and the lesbian pulp novel explosion that was radically co-opted by real life lesbians themselves. The memories, struggles, anecdotes and triumphs come thick and fast as Alice Walker, Rita Mae Brown, Jewelle Gomez and Sarah Waters join a sprawling cast who chart a triumphant literary tale. Dublin’s bookstores had better just stock up and watch out after this screening...

“We’re the Jokers of the... daughters... We’re the daughters of the Jokers you couldn’t burn?”

In Gotham City, you’re either a jokeman or a harlequin. Comedy is a controlled substance and Smylex addictions are rising. But one rebellious, unfunny, transgender clown called Joker is ready to fight the system—just as soon as she legally changes her name to Joker The Harlequin, creates a good comedy act, and deals with her toxic boyfriend, Jared Leto’s Joker. From Tim and Eric editor Vera Drew comes a bombastic mix of anti-comedy, animation and transsexual clowns made with the help of over 100 artists and with zero authorisation from DC Comics.

How Not To Date While Trans
Dir. Nyala Moon / USA / 2021 / 12'
Andie takes us on a fourth-wall breaking, bleakly comedic tour of her dating life as a black trans woman.

PRESENTED IN PARTNERSHIP WITH:
“It begins one way, until you tell him to get naked. When he takes off his underwear it becomes another thing…”

For over 25 years, partners in life, art and creativity Paco and Manolo, have published Kink Magazine, a photo-journal of ordinary queer men who want to get naked in front of their cameras. Singles, couples, shy guys and outright exhibitionists all take their turn in front of the lens as the artists debate and divulge what keeps their practice fresh and their readership dedicated. The imagery in Kink skates the line between art and pornography – as does this film – but for the models it’s a chance to explore a new side of themselves, to celebrate their bodies, declare their sexuality and join the growing pantheon of legendary Kink boys before them.

This frank and detailed documentary leaves nothing unsaid or unseen as Paco and Manolo meet, photograph and immortalise a new generation of nude guys.

PRE-FEATURE SHORT

A Fox in the Night
Dir. Keeran Anwar Blessie / United Kingdom / 2022 / 12m
Collecting drugs for the evening ahead, Lewis has an unexpectedly intense encounter with the handsome neighbourhood dealer.

In an era when gay and lesbian culture was trivialised and pathologised, or at best ignored, Esther Newton broke new ground applying anthropological techniques to the study of drag queens and gay bars, insisting on the validity of gay culture as a unique existence that mattered. As a young butch lesbian in pre-Stonewall and pre-Women’s Liberation America, Newton tread a pioneering path that impacted on generations to follow. Beautifully entwining lesbian intellectualism with drag herstory, Carlomusto’s film posits a closeness in our collective queer past that will feel nostalgic for some and inspirational for others. As Esther says of her affinity with drag queens, “I felt like I had been a female impersonator my whole life.” The archive material from a pre-Gay Liberation drag underground is incredible to behold, not to mention the eye-opening insights into the lesbian-powered world of dog agility contests, of course.

Everything At Once: Kink
Saturday 1st October
20:45, IFI
Narrative, Germany, 2012
Dir. Cheryl Dunye, 1h 4m
“I think you could learn something from us...”

Experimental sex, love and identity blossom wildly in the Berlin underground among a circle of sexy dykes and gender-bending freewheelers. Cheryl Dunye’s place in history was assured by her 1996 milestone The Watermelon Woman, the first Black Lesbian feature, and a film that proved timeless enough to hardly age at all. Mommy Is Coming is a far cry in theme and content but maintains the same joyful queerness in not only its subject matter but its inventiveness and irreverence for formal boundaries – plus Dunye’s trademark refusal to curtail female sexualities of all persuasions. Released in GAZE’s 20th year, this seems a fine time for us to look back and dream of Sapphic high-jinx, group kinks and lesbian kicks in that queerest of queer cities, Berlin. Gute nacht!

To celebrate GAZE’s 30th birthday, we’re asking the audience to choose what to watch on Saturday night! We’ve been asking GAZE-goers to tell us their favourite GAZE memory, or what film defines queer cinema for them, and we’re putting together a shortlist for our wonderful community to choose from.

Some of our audience want to see classics like Trick (1999), Orlando (1992), or The Killing of Sister George (1968), while others are eager to revisit modern classics like Call Me By Your Name (2017), Pride (2014) and Tomboy (2011). And, of course, many want to relive their favourite GAZE screenings, hoping to see The Novice (2021), Strella (2009), or Beautiful Thing (1996) on the big screen once again.

The shortlist will be announced on the GAZE website and social media in the lead up to the festival, so check out @GazeFilmFest on Twitter and Instagram as well as our Facebook page, cast your vote wisely, and don’t miss out on the opportunity to have your say!

Monkeypox continues to spread in our community and with very limited access to vaccines, we’ve got some choices to make! When we understand what actions increase the possibility of getting monkeypox, we can make choices about our sex and social lives that work best for us.

Making Informed Choices About Your Sex & Social Life During Monkeypox

Most Likely:
Direct contact with monkeypox spots, rash, ulcers, scabs or bodily fluids.
Oral, anal, vaginal/frontal sex and sharing sex toys.

More Likely:
Kissing, cuddling and holding hands.
Topless or naked dancing at an indoor crowded party.
Sharing a bed, towels, clothing or toiletry items.

Less Likely:
Sharing drinks, plates and cutlery at a party.
Clothes-on dancing at an indoor crowded party.

Very Unlikely:
Dancing at an outdoor party with mostly clothed people.
On public transport, in an airport, plane or public toilet.
At the shops, café, swimming pool or gym.

Remember: reducing close physical and intimate contact, regularly washing your hands and taking a vaccine when its offered will help in preventing monkeypox. If you have flu-like symptoms, or notice any spots or rash, stay at home and contact your sexual health service or GP to organise a test.

NELLY & NADINE

IRISH FILM INSTITUTE

Sunday 2nd October
13:15, IFI

Documentary, Sweden / Belgium / Norway, 2012
Dir. Magnus Gertten, 1h 32m

“...I would give my life to see you again for 24 hours...”

Gertten’s masterful tale of lesbian love that survived Hitler’s death camps both empowers and humbles the viewer with its vision of true love and the incredible resilience of the human spirit. On Christmas Eve 1944, opera singer Nelly is called upon to perform for her fellow camp inmates. One of these women, Nadine, is captivated, and her own ‘Madame Butterfly’ becomes imprinted on her heart. It seemed beyond a dream that having fallen in love inside Ravensbrück concentration camp, the two women would not only survive its horrors, but would find one another again in the free world. The cruelty beyond the camp walls meant their love had to remain secret for many years but now their incredible path to be together has been pieced together through letters, diaries and photography, and now will live for all time thanks to this powerful documentary tribute. A genuinely life affirming experience.

DESCRIPTION
GAZE are excited to partner with aemi for a third time to present a programme of Irish and international experimental shorts. The films in this programme look at constructs of identity, particularly as these relate to ideas of queer identity, evoking ways in which aspects of our past can be dismantled while others are re-made or unmade from the stories we tell or are told of ourselves. With a focus to some degree on a wide variety of experiences of childhood and coming of age, this screening offers reflections on transitions and interior lives made manifest, drawing out compelling relationships between past and future, truth and fiction.

Programmed by aemi (Alice Butler, Daniel Fitzpatrick, Emer Lynch)
Followed by a Q&A with Marcus Gambrill

SYNOPSIS

MASC.ING
Masc.Ing uses a music video format, drawing from 90s MTV aesthetics as well as everyday domestic objects that can be perceived as queer, to explore a transition from boy to man.

ANGELO
Set in the andean nation of bolivia, angelo is about a shoeshine boy who uses the power of his imagination to escape the harsh reality of life on the street.

A BODY IS A BODY IS A BODY
Language folds and falls in on itself in this new video work by artist duo cat and éiméar mcclay. Animated 3d tableaus of catholic paraphernalia and strikes of elemental weather accompany the words. Together, they enact the historically fraught relationship between queerness and the catholic church.

CALL ME JONATHAN
After finding video material of her childhood, the director reprogrammes her mythology as an infant and reflects on her body traversed by affections, fictions and years.

FROM A SPACELESS WITHIN
Compositing past and future, truth and fiction, from a spaceless within approaches the construction and dematerialization of the artist while asking where our intentions take root when we attempt to create anything at all.

A STORY THAT DOESN’T HAVE TO DO WITH ME
As i seek to connect with my partner about their research in bioarchaeology, a conversation emerges about survival and what is left behind after death.

MY CRAZY BOXERS
Suicidal – or just a working class queer caught in the wrong underpants? Pixelated fragments slowly materialise in this powerful and distressing video based on actual meetings with hospital staff while in a psychiatric hospital system.

ONE MAGENTA AFTERNOON
The lesson is love: when pop pop and his grandson, les, play jazz, they summon six queer spirits and tumble through their memories.

FORT
Two boyfriends wander beaches near new york city, finding shade under crude shelters they build with sheets, rubber bands, and materials (like driftwood) scavenged from the shore.

“I love that I can give you pleasure...”

Three very different yet equally confused girls grapple with love, ambition, pleasure, responsibility and their very imminent adulthood. Awkward sex, broken promises, hurled smoothies and excellent pop music form the lifeblood of this totally charming Finnish flick that places young women and their desires centre stage.

As more and more queer kids are able to come out and be accepted by their adolescent peers, we need stories that bridge the gaps between us – Girl Picture does this and more, with a big heart and a delicious sense of fun. This is future-facing storytelling from the next queer generation, and a delightful way for GAZE
